This is a story of survival. It details the author's journey through a stage four colon cancer diagnosis, laparoscopic surgery, and chemotherapy treatment. Beverly shares the diary information of her own cancer treatment experiences and solutions along with those of seven other colon cancer patients. Like many cancer patients, Beverly was blindsided when told she had colon cancer. Throughout her chemotherapy visits and management of cancer treatment side effects, she kept detailed notes of what was discussed and prescribed. Dr Amy Law, her oncologist, encouraged Beverly to share her diary notes in a book, in order to increase awareness of colon cancer and to empower readers with positive experiences of the patients interviewed for this book. Profits from the book will be donated to the Cancer Society for cancer research. MY PRIVATE DIARY There is a German proverb which says, "Hope is the last to die" Maybe this book can help you. Surviving surgery necessitating an ileostomy or colostomy coupled with the lifestyle adjustments of wearing an ostomy bag (pouch) is truly challenging and equally upsetting. You are a Warrior, Fighter, and Survivor! Other illnesses such as IBD, Crohn's Disease, or Colitis can also warrant surgery requiring an ostomy bag. A good deal of ostomy bag occurrences are time-consuming, especially when your ostomy bag does not cooperate with leaks appearing, requiring many changes throughout the day or week. Use your journal as a diary, your journey of healing, or to jot down quick notes, thoughts of the day, accomplishments, goals, quotes, useful tips, observations, or anything you desire. Also, bringing awareness for a colonoscopy screening is crucial. A blue-ribbon represents Colon Cancer Awareness. Stay positive. As a rectal cancer survivor (stage 1, ileostomy), I created this output log for myself. The only ostomy log offered by my surgeon was over-photocopied loose sheets that tended to get lost! IDEAL as a diary to write down your fears. But also to document your healing. When American saxophonist and social activist Fred Ho was diagnosed with stage 3b colo-rectal cancer in 2006 he underwent immediate surgery to remove the tumor and began preparing for chemotherapy. Within days his friends mobilized to arrange grocery deliveries, transport, companionship, and housekeeping duties—they called themselves “Warriors for Fred.” Fred chose to write his astonishing cancer memoir as a diary, acknowledging that all the greatest warriors from Sun Tzu to swordsman Murasashi to Bruce Lee wrote daily diaries because warfare against a most formidable enemy will be won, ultimately, on the philosophical level. With incredibly detailed entries Fred talks frankly about his battle—his meticulous research, his various treatments, his successes, and his failures. Together, he and his loved ones discuss plans for future artistic projects: a new opera on Antony and Cleopatra, a project with a native Alaskan totem carver, and an underwater ballet for synchronized swimmers. He learns to find joy in the simple things: the beauty of the Brooklyn Botanical Gardens, a fresh pork bun, or a night of Battlestar Galactica on DVD. Above all, we learn what it means to truly live in the present—through Fred’s unflinching description of the effects of colon cancer—and about his search not just for “a cure” in a medical sense, but for true healing. For Fred, this includes understanding the way of the warrior—one who fights for beauty, justice, health, equity, and sustainability.
